Oradea

Oradea, the capital city of Bihor County crossed by the river Crișul Repede, nestles in the western part of Romania, 8km from the Hungarian border. The present day city emerged from the union of several townships. According to the 2012 census the population of Oradea is 183.123, of which 26% are Hungarians.

The Hungarian name of the town (Nagyvárad) comes from the word vár=castle. Its Latin name is (Magno) Varadinum, in Romanian it is Oradea, in German Grosswardein. The city's roots go back to the 11th century when in the current location of Oradea there was an earth fort. Its monastery was established by king (Saint) Ladislaus I.

Throughout the centuries the ethnic composition of the city has become quite varied, which has had its impact on what the city is today.

University Library

At present our library possesses around 50.000 volumes and provides access to several local and foreign periodicals. Students and trainers of our university have access to a number of foreign database, such as JSTOR, EBSCO. Our library uses the open-shelf system, with an electronic catalogue. Besides WiFi access the library also offers printing and copying services.

Mobility programs

ERASMUS is the European Union's mobility programme in the field of higher education. Within this programme we offer our students the opportunity to study or to engage in professional practice in the countries of the European Union for at least one semester. The programme grants financial support in the form of scholarship.

Janus Pannonius College for Advanced Studies

The primary aim of this college is to select and bring together those students who excel in talent, diligence and motivation. The college will do everything in its power to assure all necessary conditions for developing its students' skills, deploying their personality and talents, and building their character.

Colloquia Language Center

Colloquia Language Center is an institution under the auspices of Partium Christian University. The main focus of the institution is the administration of examinations, but it also offers quality language education to all, at an affordable cost, in a supportive, friendly atmosphere where students come first, be their goal academic, professional or personal self-improvement. Beside language classes and examinations, we also organize different cultural events all year round, including summer camps!
